PHILADELPHIA.

At a meeting of the Officers of the ſeventh battalion of the Cheſter county Militia, at the houſe of Ezekiel Webb, in the townſhip of Kennet, on Saturday, the 26th of July, 1783.

Lieut. Colonel ISAAC TAYLOR in the chair.

WHEREAS during the late cruel and unjuſt war waged againſt theſe United States by the King of Great-Britain, a number of perſons, loſt to all ſenſe of honor and virtue, have deſerted their country, joined her enemies, and uſed every means in their power to diſtreſs and enſlave us: And whereas (our ſtruggles for liberty having been ſucceſsful, and their cruel deſigns fruſtrated) there is reaſon to fear that thoſe perſons will endeavour to inſinuate themſelves into theſe States:

Therefore to prevent this State from becoming an harbour for villains of every denomination,

Reſolved unanimouſly, 1ſt. That we will uſe our utmoſt endeavours to prevent perſons of the above deſcription from ſettling within the limits of this battalion: And we do hereby pledge ourſelves to each other, to unite and ſtand by each other in expelling them from amongſt us.

And as there is reaſon to think that ſome of the aforeſaid perſons are harboured amongſt us; therefore,

Reſolved unanimouſly, 2d. That we will hereafter enquire into the character, and examine every ſuſpicious perſon that comes within our knowledge, and that we will aſſiſt each other in apprehending and ſecuring them, that they may be brought to juſtice; and that we will unite in bringing to condign puniſhment all perſons who aid, abet or harbour any of the ſaid perſons.

Reſolved unanimouſly, 3d. That we will concur with the other battalions of this county, in inſtructing our Repreſentatives in Aſſembly, agreeable to the above reſolutions; and that Colonel Iſaac Taylor, Majors John Craig, Peter Bell, and Captains William Whiteſide and Abſalom Baird, be appointed as a Committee, to meet Committees which may be appointed from the other battalions in this county, to draw up ſaid inſtructions.

Reſolved, 4th. That theſe reſolutions be publiſhed in the Philadelphia news papers. Signed by order of the meeting,

ISAAC TAYLOR, Chairman.

Bennet's Tavern, Bucks county, July 29, 1783.

Agreeable to the invitation thrown out in a Circular Letter adopted at the meeting in Newtown, on the 12th ult. the following Deputies, conſtituting a Committee of the county, were this day convened, viz.

For Briſtol townſhip, Colonel Auguſtine Willett; Benſalem, John Vandegrift, Eſq; Falls, William Harvey; Middletown, Richard Rue and William Goforth; Newtown, James Hanna, Eſq; and Col. Francis Murrey; Southampton, Arthur Watts, Eſq; Northampton, Gerrardus Wynkoop, Eſq; and Hugh Adams; Wright's-town, Joſeph Sackett, Eſq; Warminſter, Joſeph Hart, Eſq; Warwick, John Crawford, Eſq; and Hugh Ramſey; Warrington, Andrew Long, Eſq; and Capt. Thomas Craig; Buckingham, John Wilſon, Eſq; and William Bennet, Gentleman; Solebury, David Forſt and Capt. Iſaac Vanhorne; Plumſted, Major William Kennedy and Alexander Robinſon; New-Britain, David Evans and James Snodgraſs; Rockhill, Samuel Smith, Eſq; and Thomas Armſtrong; Bedminſter, Col. Robert Robinſon; Tinicum, Colonel Arthur Erwin; Nockamixon, Samuel Wilſon and Nicholas M'Carty; Haycock, Alexander Hughes; Milford, Jacob Biſhop; Richland, Jacob Burk; Springfield, John Barclay, Eſq; and John Smith; and for Durham, Richard Backhouſe, Eſq;

Then, on motion, JOSEPH HART, Eſq; was unanimouſly voted in the Chair.

The reſolutions and circular letter which gave birth to the preſent meeting being then read and unanimouſly approved of,

It was Reſolved nem. con. That as it is the unqueſtionable right, ſo it is the indiſpenſable duty of the Freemen of this County, to inſtruct their Repreſentatives in Aſſembly in the impending political criſis, when a ceſſation of hoſtilities, and the near approach of a definitive peace, may create pretenſions, and originate meaſures incompatible with the fundamental principles of the revolution, and deſtructive of thoſe rights and intereſts which we are bound to tranſmit to poſterity untainted---Whereupon

Reſolved, That the Chairman and four members be immediately appointed to report to this Committee, a ſett of inſtructions to their Repreſentatives of the County in Aſſembly, and that in the mean time adjourn.

On motion, the members appointed were Joſeph Hart, Eſq; James Hanna, Eſq; Gerrardus Wynkoop, Eſq; Major William Goforth and Richard Backhouſe, Eſq;---Adjourned till 8 o'clock in the evening.

The Committee being aſſembled according to adjournment, the Chairman reported a ſett of inſtructions to the Repreſentatives of the county in Aſſembly; which being read and conſidered by paragraphs, were unanimouſly approved, and are as followeth, viz.

To THOMAS LUNG, JOSEPH SAVITT, JAMES WILKINSON, JAMES TATE and JOSEPH THOMAS, Eſquires, the Repreſentatives in the General Aſſembly of this Commonwealth for the county of Bucks.

GENTLEMEN,

WE your free and independent electors, fully ſenſible of that liberty, and thoſe conſtitutional rights, the precious earnings of the blood and treaſure of theſe United States, deem it expedient, at the preſent critical conjuncture of American politics, to tranſmit you inſtructions for the government of your conduct during the enſuing Seſſions of Aſſembly. Waving the manifold public grievances which claim redreſs, we ſhall addreſs you on a few points which more immediately and eſſentially affect our feelings as patriots, and our intereſts as freemen. We however think proper barely to ſuggeſt to you, the abſolute neceſſity there is for you to adopt ſuitable ſteps to obviate the various evils and inconveniences which reſult from diſaffected councils, the dilatory progreſs of legiſlative buſineſs, the ſhameful delinquency of ſeveral of the weſtern counties, which neglect or refuſe to contribute any proportion to the ſupport of the public burdens, and the enfeebled operations of the executive department. The entire confidence we place in your diſcernment and integrity, induces us to ſubmit intereſting concerns to your judgment and direction, whilſt we proceed to give you the following explicit inſtructions.

1ſt. We moſt ſolemnly charge and enjoin you to exert your utmoſt abilities in promoting a law to prohibit the return into this Commonwealth, of all ſuch perſons who were formerly ſubjects thereof, and have joined, or voluntarily aided the enemies of theſe United States in the courſe of the late revolution: For we contend on the broad ground of experience, and the plain evidence of reaſon, that the re-admiſſion of ſuch infamous deſerters into the boſom of our country, would greatly diſhonor and endanger the State. We ſpurn falſe fears, or vain apprehenſions, when we alledge that men of this deſcription, verſed in the wiles of politics, disciplined in the schools of corruption, and supported by a powerful, unbroke, political combination, would, if suffered to come among us, bid fair to sap the first principles of the revolution, and prostrate the goodly fabric which we have reared at the expence of much blood, vast toil, and immense treasure.

2dly. We charge you to oppose with your strongest efforts any attempt (should such be made) to repeal the test laws now in force. It is enough that those who have opposed the virtuous claims of America, who advocated the cause of Britain, and bowed the neck to tyranny, should be suffered to live under the benign influence of a free government: They can have no claim to a participation of its administration; and we are convinced, from the peculiar circumstances of this Commonwealth, that this measure, in the highest degree inequitable, would so sensibly affect the genuine whig interest, as again to rouse those passions and interests which strung the arm of liberty, and open new scenes of blood: For it seems impossible that the free spirited sons of Pennsylvania, after establishing her independence with their swords, should ever submit to be governed by traitors, trimmers, or time-serving whigs.

3dly. We earnestly recommend to you, to use your endeavours to promote a Convention of the States, to take into consideration the present defective system of the fœderal government, and to make such alterations and amendments of the Confederation, as may give permanency, efficacy, dignity and security to the union.

4thly. We also strictly charge and enjoin you to use your best endeavours to procure a new militia law, with such alterations and improvements as are apparently necessary.

5thly. We most particularly charge you to attend to the preservation of public faith, the sole foundation of public credit; and upon no pretence of public good, or local policy whatever, to concur in any measure that shall tend to destroy or weaken that faith. And we most seriously enjoin you to essay every practicable means to comply with the requisitions of Congress, for discharging the national debt, and those solemn engagements in which we stand to our late meritorious army, and the public creditors of every denomination.

Lastly, We most solemnly command you to watch over that great bulwark of equal liberty, the Constitution under which we live; and that you enquire into and censure any attempt to elude or enervate its force.

On motion, Resolved, That the Chairman sign and present these instructions to the Representatives of the County in Assembly, as the sense, and in behalf of the Freemen of the same.

Whereas, by the fifth and sixth articles of the late Provisional Treaty of Peace between these United States and Great-Britain, it is there provided, that Congress should recommend to the Legislatures of the different States, a restitution of all confiscated property belonging to real British subjects; and that the like favor should be extended to any other description of men: And whereas treaties between nations are of a very solemn nature, and we would not by any means wish to act or do any thing which, in its tendency, might impair the faith pledged therein,---yet are of opinion that, consistent with the spirit of the said Provisional Treaty, those men may be prohibited from residing among us, until Congress discharge that part of the duty required of them in said articles, and the Legislature of this State decide whether they will lend a deaf ear to the flattering recommendation or not.

Therefore, unanimously Resolved, That until Congress comply as aforesaid, and the Legislature of this State adopt their recommendation, we, for ourselves and constituents, pledge our faith, that we will use every effort in our power to exclude all descriptions of men, who have deserted their country and joined the enemy of these United States, during our late struggle with Great-Britain, from residing among us; and that we will consider any person or persons who give countenance or shelter to them, as men devoid of every principle of virtue and patriotism.

The main objects of the meeting being thus accomplished, it was moved by a member, that the Committee should make inquisition into the measures which were employed to incline the Supreme Executive Council of the State, to remit the punishment of Samuel Burroughs, and into the motives which could draw down the favor of that honorable body upon a traitor to his country, and a most flagitious offender against the laws, the peace and the interest of society;---which being agreed to, the substance of a letter from George Wall, Esq; Representative of the county, being communicated by one of the Committee, stating, that in consequence of a petition in favor of the said Burroughs, the Council had thought proper, notwithstanding his representation of the character of Burroughs, to remit the punishment to which he had been sentenced for horse-stealing. A copy of the petition alluded to being then produced and read, was discovered at first view to teem with misrepresentations, falshood and deception---signed only by eleven inhabitants of the county, the rest being citizens of Philadelphia or elsewhere. Whereupon, and after due consideration, it was resolved,

1st. That this Committee consider the pardon of Samuel Burroughs as an impolitic elusion of justice, and are sensible it must deeply affect the domestic quiet and safety of the good people of this county; inasmuch as it holds out encouragement to the tory banditti, who daily infest it, to persist in their lawless outrages on the best and most respectable whigs of the community; nor can we discern any precedent, usage or sound maxims of policy, to warrant the Supreme Executive power in pardoning a citizen of one county, convicted on a fair trial by his peers, for offences committed in the same, on a petition framed and generally promoted in a different county, particularly where the representative of the former, as the guardian of its local rights and interests, disapproved the measure.

2dly. That this Committee, knowing the petition preferred to the Supreme Executive Council, now under consideration, to consist much of art, disingenuity and falshood, can never consider the framers and promoters of it as the best friends to the public weal, to private virtue, or common honesty.

3dly. The Committee consider it highly destructive of that confidence and harmony which must constitute the basis of public happiness, for one county to interfere in the local polity and interests of another; and we conceive that the citizens of this county, who signed the petition in favor of Burroughs, are justly censurable, and we at the same time sincerely deplore the infatuation which subjected our worthy brethren in Philadelphia, under the influence of artful, designing, interested men, to give their names in support of an infamous wretch, who belonged to, and stood condemned on a fair trial by his country, for enormities committed in this county.

Resolved, That these proceedings be signed and published by the Chairman, in behalf of the county.

Messieurs HALL and SELLERS,

You will please to lay before your readers, as soon as convenient, the address of the Citizens of Philadelphia and the Liberties thereof, to the Congress of the United States, together with the resolution of that honorable body, in answer thereto:

THIS resolution I had the honor to receive last night, together with the inclosed very friendly and respectful letter, from the Hon. Elias Boudinot, Esq; President of Congress; by your publishing this letter, together with the address and resolution of Congress, in your next paper, you will best enable me to fulfil the intentions of Congress, by furnishing the most speedy communication of their favorable sentiments of the government and citizens of Pennsylvania.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS WILLING.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1783.

The Address of the Citizens of Philadelphia, and the Liberties thereof, to his Excellency the President and Congress of the United States.

MOST HONORABLE SIRS,

FROM the commencement of the late ever memorable contest for liberty, and the honor and happiness of the human race, the citizens of Philadelphia and of the Liberties thereof have, in an essential manner, distinguished themselves by every exertion which principle could inspire, or fortitude support.

Neither have they been free with their lives only as militia, but with their fortunes as citizens; as instances of these we need only appeal to facts.

The progress of the war has fully confirmed the one, and the monthly return of taxes from this State, of which the city and liberties form so great a part, has not been exceeded by any; and we wish they had been proportionably equalled by every State in the union. To which we may add the establishment of the bank, which has extended its usefulness to the public service, and acquired a permanency as effectual, and in some instances superior to those of older nations.

The government of this State has likewise ever distinguished itself by adopting and passing, and its citizens by supporting all such laws recommended by Congress, as were necessary to be passed throughout the continent for bringing the war to an happy issue, and for the raising such monies as the expences of it required.

The act for laying a duty of five per cent. on imported articles, though it would have found its richest mine in the commerce and consumption of this city and State, yet, struck with the propriety and equity of raising money from the channel in which it most circulates, and impressed with the necessity as well as the bounden duty of maintaining the justice and honor of America, we cheerfully gave it our best support. And as we have ever been, so we mean ever to continue to be among the foremost to establish the national character of America, on the firm basis of inviolable faith and sacred honor.

In thus expressing our minds to Congress, we are likewise compelled to say, that from your residence among us, we have been witnesses to the uncommon difficulties you have had to struggle with; we have beheld them with concern, and oftentimes with heartfelt anxiety. We have participated in your cares, and partook of your burdens. While our chiefest consolation under them was, that they did not arise from any unwillingness or backwardness in the government of this State to adopt proper measures for removing them, nor from any narrow views in the citizens to counteract them.

We do not amuse the world with calling on Congress to do justice to the army, and to the creditors of America, and at the same time with-hold the means by which that justice is to be fulfilled. On the contrary, we freely offer ourselves to bear our share in any national measure to effect those purposes, and to establish the character of America equal to her rank.

Though we do not enter into the reasons or causes which might have suggested to you rhonorable body the propriety of adjourning, at the particular time you did adjourn from your long accustomed residence in this city, we beg leave to assure Congress of the affection of the citizens of Philadelphia to that union, which has so happily succeeded in accomplishing the freedom and independence of America, and that if either now, or at any future time, until the residence of Congress shall be permanently established, it should appear to your honorable body, that the situation of Philadelphia is convenient for transacting therein the affairs of the United States, that Congress may repose the utmost confidence in the patriotism of its inhabitants, not only to prevent any circumstance which may have a tendency to disturb the necessary deliberations of Congress, but to aid in all measures to support the national honor and dignity.

By the UNITED STATES in CONGRESS assembled, July 28th, 1783.

An Address from the citizens of Philadelphia, and the liberties thereof, having been received and read,

Resolved, That the President inform the citizens of Philadelphia and its liberties, in answer to their respectful and affectionate address, that the United States in Congress assembled have great satisfaction in reviewing the spirited and patriotic exertions, which have been made by the government and citizens of Pennsylvania, in the course of the late glorious war: And that they are highly pleased with the resolution expressed by the citizens of Philadelphia, to aid in all measures which may have a tendency to support the national honor and dignity.

CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

SIR, Princeton, July 30, 1783.

As the honorable Delegates of Pennsylvania, resident in the city, are expected here before this can reach you, and I observe that your name is the first subscribed to the address, permit me, Sir, to beg the favor of you to make this answer known to the respectable citizens who are among your fellow subscribers, and at the same time to assure them, that I feel myself very happy and highly honored in thus communicating the testimony of the United States, to the patriotic and successful exertions of the government and citizens of Pennsylvania in the common cause.

By the Ship GRANGE, Captain ROBERTS, from Liverpool, we have the following Intelligence, viz.

LONDON.

May 15. Agents are ſent all over the kingdom to inſpect into the quality and quantity of oak trees, ſufficient for timber to build ſhips of the line; and inſtructions are ſent to the rangers of the ſeveral royal foreſts to deliver in, by the month of September, an account of ſuch timber as will be fit to cut down by October for the ſame purpoſe, as it is intended to lay a large ſtock of oak in all his Majeſty's dock-yards, to ſeaſon againſt future emergencies. Engliſh Chronicle.

May 22. Sir Guy Carleton has uſed every poſſible endeavour to perſuade the Congreſs to ratify the treaty with America, without waiting till the troops ſhall have been withdrawn; but his efforts have been entirely fruitleſs; the Congreſs remained inflexibly bent on ſeeing their country freed from the Britiſh troops, before they would conſent to take the treaty into conſideration. They refuſed to receive a gentleman whom Sir Guy was deſirous to ſend to them in a public character, to treat with them on the ſubject, but they gratified him ſo far as to ſend a Delegate from their own body to New-York, who arrived there the beginning of April: However, the Britiſh General has not been able to turn this circumſtance to any particular account, and, therefore, in purſuance of conditional orders which he had previouſly received, he began to make every preparation for evacuating New York, Long-Iſland, Staten-Iſland, &c. he diſpatched a veſſel to Admiral Pigot, in the Weſt-Indies, with an information, that, as it was his Majeſty's pleaſure the Britiſh forces ſhould be withdrawn from America as ſpeedily as poſſible, he ſhould have occaſion for all the tranſports the Admiral could ſpare, to be employed in carrying away the troops. Sir Guy was preſſing that the tranſports might be diſpatched to him the firſt fair wind, in order that the public might be relieved as expeditiouſly as poſſible, from the heavy burden of ſupporting an army, which is no longer of any uſe in America. We may, therefore, look ſoon for the evacuation of all the places which the King now holds within the limits of the United States preſcribed by the Proviſional Treaty. It is ſingular, that in America nothing was known of the peace till the 9th of March, on which day a French frigate brought the news of it to Philadelphia.

A letter from Peterſburgh ſays, that the fleet of men of war which ſailed from thence ſome time ago, are arrived off the Dardanelles, and lie within ſight of a Turkiſh fleet, ſo that they daily expect to hear of an engagement, and that a ſloop is ſailed in order to bring the intelligence to the Empreſs as ſoon as poſſible.

The treaty with Holland is nearly ready for ſigning. The negociation has been protracted ever ſince the change of the miniſtry, merely for the purpoſe of inducing the Dutch to cede to us Trincomale, to which they would by no means conſent; but, on the other hand, as we ſpoke to the Dutch en vainqueurs, our ſtile had this good effect, that it made them drop all thoughts of calling for an indemnification for their loſſes during the war: This ſubject died away after the firſt conference with our Commiſſioners, and the Dutch have actually conſented to make us ſome conceſſions in the Eaſt; but, on the other hand, we have been obliged to purchaſe them by conceſſions, which not the power of Holland indeed, but of the armed neutrality, has extorted from us: In a word, we have been obliged to treat on the principle of a mare liberum.

The Iriſh propoſe a teſt act at their next election, it being determined not to elect any candidate who will not vote for an Iriſh bill of rights, and a tax upon all abſentees.

By the Iriſh mails we learn, a bill is now preparing for Parliament, to reſtrict the importation of wool and woolen yarn from this kingdom, whenever the price ſhall exceed 10s. a ſtone. This bill, it is ſaid, will obviate the complaint of our manufacturers, of the ſcarcity and high rate of the raw material.

A letter from Paris ſays; "The Preliminaries between England and Holland are not yet ſigned. The liberty of navigation in the Indian Seas is ſtill inſiſted on; this article the Dutch are not willing to grant, as being very prejudicial to them; we flatter ourſelves, however, that matters will ſoon be accommodated. The Duke of Manchester aſſiſts every day at the conferences held by the Miniſters, and ſeems to take particular notice of Doctor Franklin."

May 29. According to advices from Amſterdam, the States General had commenced their deliberations on the 2d of this month, and had continued ſitting de die in diem ever ſince; but it is ſaid they have not yet finiſhed agitating the treaty which is to be definitive with England. The new Miniſtry (the Duke of Portland's Adminiſtration) in London not having proved ſo pliant as to accede to any terms, unleſs that important ſettlement of Negapatnam, on the Coromandel coaſt, is ceded to England, which is moſt violently oppoſed in the Senate by ſuch Deputies as are members of the Eaſt-India Company, who repreſent the importance of that ſettlement as of the higheſt conſideration. A meſſenger was to be diſpatched to Paris the 24th inſt. (Saturday laſt) but as the Engliſh Cabinet had on the 9th inſt. given its ultimatum, there was no alternative but to accede, eſpecially as there is no occurrence of any import with either of the other powers to prevent the definitive treaties being ſigned on the 6th of June, the day appointed.

May 30. We hear that the command of the ſhips to be ſtationed in the Weſt-Indies is to be given to Admiral Gambier, and in the Mediterranean to Captain Leveſon Gower.

Advices from Paris, dated May 18, ſtate that couriers had arrived there from Peterſburgh and Vienna, with information of thoſe two courts having accepted the mediation of England, France and Pruſſia, for the purpoſe of adjuſting the differences which have ariſen between the Ottoman Porte, and the two courts above-mentioned. It is believed, upon very good grounds, that the interference of theſe powerful and reſpectable negociators will produce an arrangement ſo neceſſary to the peace of Europe; as the expulſion of the Turks, if it ſhould take place, would conſequently prevent the traffic which both the Engliſh and the French carry on in the Grand Seignor's dominions; and if Turkey in Europe fell into the hands either of the Emperor of Germany, or the Empreſs of Ruſſia, the commerce of the place would naturally devolve to the power which had become the poſſeſſor of it. This would be extremely injurious to the intereſts of France, and would entirely deſtroy the political equilibrium, by the increaſe of ſtrength which it would give to Ruſſia and the Houſe of Auſtria---Theſe various conſiderations have made all the neutral parties earneſtly wiſh that this triple mediation may not be unſucceſsful on a matter which concerns all Europe; nevertheleſs all the letters from the Levant are filled with relations of the immenſe preparations which are now making in Turkey for putting themſelves in a ſtate of defence both by land and ſea.

Dr. Franklin is ſtill greatly careſſed by the French Miniſtry. The Philoſopher is frequently honoured with private conferences, on the ſubject of a Commercial Treaty, from an opinion entertained by Count Vergennes, that no man is better acquainted with the genius and diſpoſition of his countrymen, the nature of the American trade, the general produce of their lands, and their wants of different commodities from Europe.

Congreſs have warmly encouraged the growing Hemp in the Colonies, as it is expected the temper and genius of that newly independent people will occaſion a moſt conſiderable conſumption of ſuch an exalting article of diſtributive juſtice!

The American Congreſs have iſſued out a proclamation, offering great encouragement to Engliſh carpenters and ſhipwrights, who will enter into their ſervice, if they will engage for a term of years to work in the Dock-yards, and to prepare the timber for building the men of war. The ſame letters ſay, that a great number of hands are employed to cut down timber, which muſt be carried many miles by land carriage.

Our readers may reſt aſſured of the fact, that matters are ſo far adjuſted with the Dutch, that the Comte de Welderen is expected in town in the courſe of next week, to reſume his character of Ambaſſador from the United States, and to put the final hand to the negociation now pending between the two countries.

Some letters from Vienna, which arrived here yeſterday, mention that there had been already a ſkirmiſh on the frontiers of Hungary, between a detachment of Turks and ſome German horſe.

There will be no general exchange of priſoners, taken during the war, till the definitive treaties are ſigned.

Spain is uſing her influence towards bringing about a peace between Turkey and the Northern Powers. For above three months paſt, a Spaniſh Miniſter has been at Conſtantinople, charged with commercial affairs.

The expectation of a ſpeedy war between the Turks and Ruſſians, has induced a great number of merchants very prudently to lay in a large ſtock of ſuch articles, as, in time of war, cannot be produced from the dominions of the Empreſs but at conſiderable riſque, and a very advanced price.

The Dutch make up their expences to the winding-up of the war at nineteen millions; their loſſes are near twenty millions more, the greateſt part of which falls on their Eaſt-India Company; ſo that in three years they have ſuſtained damage to the amount of near 40 millions; all which might have been prevented by a little good faith.

Every power in Europe appears anxious to participate in the American trade, and Treaties of Commerce are ſettled with moſt of them, whilſt Mr. Hartley, the Engliſh Negociator, meets with the moſt unexpected difficulties, though the terms propoſed are equally advantageous to America, as to Great-Britain; however, the laſt letters from France mention, that the buſineſs is ſo far brought to a concluſion, that Mr. Hartley talks of leaving Paris very ſhortly.

June 3. The Dutch letters received yeſterday from Amſterdam mention, that the turbulence in the Senate had not yet ſubſided, nor had any final anſwer been ſent on the 27th ult. to Paris, though the French Reſident, who manages affairs in the abſence of the Duc de Vauguyon, had frequently preſſed a ſpeedy determination, as the definitive treaties are delayed ſigning at Paris on that account ſolely: The port of Negapatnam is not the only point in diſpute; the free navigation to the Eaſtern iſlands is ſtrongly objected to.

On Saturday the Court-Martial ſat at the Horſe Guards, and paſſed the following ſentence on Lieutenant Colonel Cockburne:

"The Court-Martial, having duly conſidered and weighed the evidence given in ſupport of the firſt charge againſt the priſoner, Lieut. Col. James Cockburne, with that produced in his defence, is of opinion, that he is guilty of the whole of the ſaid charge; namely, of culpable neglect while commanding in chief his Majeſty's forces in the iſland of St. Euſtatius, in not taking the neceſſary precautions for the defence of the ſaid iſland, notwithſtanding he had received the fulleſt intelligence of an attack intended by the enemy upon the ſame; and of having, on the 26th day of November, ſuffered himſelf to be ſurprized by an interior body of French troops, which landed on the ſaid iſland without an oppoſition; and did moſt ſhamefully abandon and give up the garriſons, ports, and troops, which were under his command: And this Court do adjudge, that he, the ſaid Lieut. Colonel James Cockburne, be therefore caſhiered, and declared unworthy of ſerving his Majeſty in any military capacity whatever, and that the ſame be notified to him publicly at the head of the 13th and 15th regiments of foot, who were under his command at the time of the ſaid ſurprize, if that may be convenient: And the Court doth, for the ſake of example, further adjudge, that the charge of which the priſoner has been ſo fully convicted, together with the ſentence pronounced againſt him, be declared in public orders, and circulated to every corps in his Majeſty's ſervice.
